

Dear Chairman Powell and Commissioners,
Broadcast news is today's equivalent of a free press. The concentration of ownership, lack of coverage of critical issues and extremist slant (in both directions) have left us with no real voice, no outlet for genuine criticism, no watchdog for the interests Americans have in common.

Please ask yourself the question, "What will you do when they come for you?" The power to sway the American electorate may not forever lie in the hands it does now. The next set of hands, wielding power and influence never dreamed of by the founding fathers, may have sinister plans. What shall we do then?

Sincerely,

Sam Jorgensen
